Says that Bosses are Not Created But Merely Take Advantage of the Existing Conditions.

(By Associated Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Francis Heney, famous throughout the country as a prosecutor, laid down his half of the completed argument in the case of Calhoun, after relating his ambition to become the district attorney and after outlining with all vehemence of his fiery disposition the theory the prosecution was tending to connect the president of the United Railroads with the charge of bribery that had served as a basis for a five-weeks trial. Heney expects to conclude tomorrow afternoon. It is hoped that Judge Lawlor after the submission of the argument will decide to give his instructions, which will take about three hours to deliver and give the case to the jury in the night session. Otherwise the instructions will be deferred until Saturday and no prediction as to the end of the trial can be ventured. Heney attempted to demonstrate to the jury that the prosecution had no course open save to grant immunity to the supervisors who gave the most direct testimony against the defendant, and related every detail of the history of Ruef, Schmitz and others charged with complicity in the bribes of the labor union administration. Stanley Moore interrupted Heney during his address several times and disputed the statistics relating to the earnings of the United Railroads or entered upon other contradictions of his speech. In speaking of "bossism," Heney said:
"History shows that a menace to our existence as a republic lies in our great cities, where we foster bosses. Bosses are not created but they merely take advantage of the conditions. They are supported by two classes, as there were at the time of the second election of Schmitz. One holds forth in the tenebrous where they want a permit to commit crime, run opium joints, dance halls and rob drunken men, hoping to arrange it that the place may be blind. The other class preys from above. They are the people who live on Pacific avenue in the so-called fashionable neighborhoods. They want higher dividends from the investments in their gas, railway and telephone privileges."

The laborite was unexpectedly presented with a purse of money by the federation. Many of the speakers voiced confidence in Gompers' discretion, uprightness and ability. ## SERVANTS TESTIFY IN THE GOULD CASE

Defense is Seeking to Show Habitual Drunkenness of Mrs. Gould—Fifty Witnesses for Rebuttal.

(Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, June 17.—A procession of footmen, bellboys, waiters, butlers, maids, chauffeurs and other servants, occupied the stand today in the Gould divorce case, and all were called in an effort by the defense to show that the wife of the millionaire had an ungovernable temper when partially under the influence of liquor. Apparently the defense is seeking to show the habitual drunkenness which, under the ruling of Justice Dowling, would justify the husband in leaving her, and furthermore that her character was transformed for the worse. Mrs. Gould, at times shrank visibly as the witnesses told of seeing her in an intoxicated condition, and at other times smiled and stared the speakers out of countenance. The only break in the line of servant witnesses was Melville E. Chapman, a broker, who was a guest on the Gould yacht. He declared Mrs. Gould was undeniably drunk. Shearn announced he had fifty witnesses for the rebuttal.

"66" CLUB WILL APPEAL.

In the case of Wandell vs. the Sixty-Six club, in which the plaintiff recovered judgment for $2750 and $462 costs there will be an appeal made during the coming week. WASHINGTON, June 17.—When the income tax comes up in the senate tomorrow Aldrich will move to defer it until after the tariff is completed.
It will probably carry with it the president's program for a corporation income tax and the constitutional amendment permitting congress to levy and collect without regard to the apportionment of the states. At a Democratic caucus the majority decided the enactment of the income tax at the present session was the opinion expressed by the administration with designs to prevent it reaching a direct vote.

MINERS STRANDED AT ALLEGHANY

(By Associated Press.)
ALLEGHANY (Cal.), June 17.—Many miners are practically stranded here and men seeking labor in mines are advised by the operators to stay away at least for the present. The recent fabulous strikes caused a great influx of mining men and miners. For the former there is still room but for those who came to work here is disappointment for the reason that none of the new properties have been sufficiently opened up to employ many men.
Living is very expensive and accommodations are practically unobtainable at any price. Nights in this mountain climate are cold, and sleeping outside has decided discomforts. Men are sleeping in stables and all manner of places that afford any shelter.
The enormously rich strikes recently reported at the Lightner, Sixteen-to-One and Morning Glory mines continue their first showings.
